Smoke detectors presented to needy Romulus families

Low income Romulus families will be presented with free smoke detectors for their homes in coming weeks by the Romulus Fire Department.

Fire Chief William Grenslait said the Romulus Fire Department was given the smoke detectors through a grant from the State Fire Marshall's office.

Local Fire Marshall David Allison revealed that the local department had sought 1,300 smoke detectors and were approved for 500.

A letter from State Fire Marshal Wade E. Schaefer stated, "Forty thousand smoke detectors were requested by local fire departments, social service agencies and civic groups throughout the state." Schaefer said, "We awarded 3,400 smoke detectors this year as a major fire prevention effort in Michigan."

High school fire empties classrooms

 By AL POST
 ANP Staff Writer

The entire Romulus Senior High School student body was evacuated from school early Monday, after a roll of toilet paper was set ablaze, according to Romulus Fire Department officials.

Fire department officials believe the toilet paper was set on fire in a first floor men's bathroom. While the fire caused little or no damage to the school, dense smoke filled the middle stair first floor bathroom area and the second floor area from classrooms 200 to 206. School officials immediately began an assive clean-up effort which disrupted classes in nine classrooms for the remainder of the day.

Fire Marshall David Allison said the heavy smoke was caused by the burning toilet paper melting the center plastic roll holding it. The burning plastic in turn sent the billowing smoke throughout the area both inside and adjoining the bathroom, Allison said.

Because the plastic roll was small and the area the smoke filtered into was massive, the potential danger to students was limited, he said. A quick response by school officials to turn off the building fans also helped to minimize the damage, according to fire department officials.

The alarm sounded at approximately 9 a.m. after a security officer was alerted by teacher Jean Voight, who spotted the billowing black smoke. She then notified Assistant Principal Michael Teasdale, who quickly spurred the evacuation of the school. He asked school secretary Gen Dugan to call the fire department.

After fire department personnel eliminated the smoke, clean-up crews were called in to wash down the walls, floor and ceilings of the bathroom, as well as nearby hallways and classrooms.

Romulus Senior High School authorities revealed that a freshman male student confessed to causing the fire. They also said they learned that he had told a fellow student he started the fire "to get out of school."

The student has been suspended from school for arson and will undergo an administrative review by school officials before he can return to classes.

During his suspension, the student will not receive credit for school work that he is not present to complete. He also must remain away from the school. If he trespasses on school property, he will be subject to police prosecution, according to school officials.

5 suspects held for auto thefts

 By AL POST
 ANP Staff Writer

Three adults and two juveniles, who Romulus Police claim could be part of an auto theft ring, were arrested last week by a Special Investigation Unit in Romulus.

Lt. D.A. Early reported the suspects were nabbed following a year-long investigation. "Romulus undercover officers were able to gain the confidence of the arrested men and work within the group while others conducted periodic surveillance," Early said.

A member of the group contacted an undercover officer, Early said, and made it known he had a stolen vehicle and wished to sell it.

On April 7, a stolen 1987 Chevrolet pick-up truck was delivered to undercover officers. The next day four more vehicles were delivered, Early said.

Romulus officers then moved in to make the arrest, but four subjects fled the scene. Police nabbed three of the men a short distance from the scene and a fourth in at his home in Lincoln Park that same night.

Police have since charged five persons with a 14-count felony warrant. Sentencing

Veteran firefighter honored in ceremony

Firefighter George Sparr, a veteran of 16 years with the Romulus Fire Department, was honored this week by members of the city council following his recent retirement.

Sparr, who now serves as full-time dispatcher for the combined police and fire departments, was presented with an honorary badge and certificate signed by Mayor Beverly McAnally and members of the city council.

Sparr said he was the first local firefighter to be sent to the two-week University of Michigan Fire Academy back in the mid-1970s.

While at the academy, he learned how to attack and extinguish a fire, how to handle self-contained breathing apparatus and how to make medical rescues.

He joined the volunteer fire department on his birthday in 1975 and served until last year.

He also trained to be an Emergency Medical Technician at Wyandotte Hospital.

His most memorable fire response run was to Metro Airport to assist in the Flight 255 airplane crash on Aug. 16, 1987 in which all but one passenger were killed.

Chamber to study airport issues

 By AL POST
 ANP Staff Writer

The Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce has begun studying the potential plan by Northwest Airlines to add a Disney-like facility to Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The chamber legislative committee was alerted last week to the fact that Mayor Beverly McAnally (prior to leaving for California for her annual west coast vacation) expressed "great distress" concerning possible Northwest plans to make Metro Airport a "Disney-like attraction that will offer shopping, recreation and convention facilities" in potential competition with existing and planned Romulus businesses.

McAnally last week fired off a strong letter to Congressman Bob Carr (D-Okemos), who appeared at an official tour of the new 204 foot Metro Airport Tower recently, stating "the prospect of Metro Airport using federal and airline funds to support competing convention, retail or hotel facilities, to the detriment of our community's economy, causes me great distress."

McAnally added in her letter, "We want to clarify our support and stress that we envision the new (airport) terminal, if it is actually constructed, to be a modern, well-designed facility, serving the traveling public, rather than a 'Disney-like' regional recreational or retail attraction competing with existing supporting businesses."

The mayor further explained, "we have been pursuing our own plans for a publicly-owned exhibition and convention facility to be located off-site, which is needed in order to respond to current market demands and support our community's 20 existing hotels."

She also pressed Carr on his positions concerning airport development issues.

Romulus officials are already fighting to improve "buy-out" communication between Wayne County and Metro Airport officials and the business and home owners listed in the path of planned airport expansion.

Local business owners stated they are currently in limbo business plans expansion or relocation plans, while waiting an airport offer to buy their properties. Numerous owners charged they were promised an official offer on their property last fall and still have not received one.

Romulus city officials said further delay in giving property owners a fixed time schedule on potential land acquisitions could anger and frustrate the owners enough to make them want to relocate outside of Romulus—and further weaken the tax base in Romulus.

To add to the confusion, she said, after being given repeated assurances that the expansion effort is a "done deal" reports are now circulating that "the airport expansion project itself is in jeopardy."

"Whether Wayne County should now be engaging in the acquisition of a substantial part of our community's tax base on such a speculative basis," McAnally said.

"(Wayne) County Executive (Ed McNamara) has long maintained that Metro Airport would not compete for industrial or air freight operations that could be feasibly located off of the airport, she wrote in her letter.

"Likewise," she continued, "his staff has agreed that in order to minimize the loss of tax base, no concessionaires, which are not subject to the provisions of the General Property Tax statutes, would be located in the expansion area currently under acquisition."

In her letter to Carr, McAnally also expressed deep concerns over McNamara's comments that Northwest Airlines also is trying to block a $3 passenger fee on passengers departing from Metro Airport.

That fee was expected to collected $130 million in revenue in the first five years and was considered a key feature in the airport expansion cost plan.

Under a recently new federal law, the Federal Aviation Administration must approve that fee before it is added to the ticket prices.

While last month Lester Robinson, deputy director of Metro Airport for administration and finance, told concerned Romulus business owners that the passenger fee was a key ingredient in their expansion cost plan, it later was revealed that Northwest wrote to the FAA opposing the fee plan because of competition cost factors.

Robinson, attempting to calm local fears, said Friday that the airport expansion "will happen" and that the process is going forward.

Some people are scared as positions by various parties within the total negotiation process appear in the press, Robinson said.

But we want to assure the public, Robinson said, Northwest has not lost any support for the project going on, it is just staking a position in the negotiations.

Robinson stressed that Northwest could not veto a $3 passenger fee. In fact an airline wrote a similar letter in Minneapolis and the fee was still approved by the FAA.

"Northwest admires Disney facilities," Robinson said, "and would like to consider some entertainment on the grounds." But he stressed, no convention site is being planned by Wayne County or the airport management.

"We are not trying to ruin any of the city's planning efforts," he said, "and as soon as a number of the environmental studies are completed on Romulus business properties, the property owners should be receiving official purchase offers."

DIGEST

School board meeting delayed

The regular April 27 meeting of the Romulus Community School Board has been rescheduled for May 4.

The stated reason for the delay is that a number of school board members and Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell will be at the National Association of School Boards meeting on April 27 in Florida.

Pastors' unit to meet May 14

The recently formed area pastors' alliance will meet at 8:30 a.m. May 14 at the local Salvation Army Men Rehabilitation facility.

Pastor William Kren of the Cherry Hill Evangelical Church of Inkster and president of the Western Wayne County Holiness Association revealed that the group is growing each month and is seeking to involve local churches in multi-congregation spiritual efforts.

The group was formed in March and meets at a different church facility each month.

Cecilia Senn revealed that the pastors will share in a coffee hour first at the center and then will be invited to join in a tour of the facility.

The local Salvation Army center, thrift store and warehouse are slated to move to make way for the Metro Airport expansion.

The Army hopes to relocate within the Romulus city limits, Senn said.

Seniors plan trip to convent

Senior citizens from the Romulus Senior Citizens Center are being offered a one day trip to Sylvania, Ohio May 28.

The trip will leave the center at 8 a.m. and tour the Franciscan Convent and College. After lunch they will also visit the Crosby Gardens and Ken's Flower Shop.

Free archery lessons offered

Free indoor archery instructions for youth under 16 years of age will be offered each Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Romulus Metro Archery Club.

Youths must be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult over 21 years of age. A $2 range fee pre-registration also is recommended.

Awards will be given to youths with the best attendance.

The archery range is located at 12731 Huron River Drive.

For more information call 941-9474.

School board honors commander

Commander Timothy Marvin of the Navy Junior ROTC was awarded a certificate of achievement from the Romulus Community School District for his many hours of service to students at Romulus Senior High School.

Isaac promoted to Lance Corporal

Marine Lance Cpl. Jimmie D. Isaac, son of Brenda S. Daru of Romulus, was recently promoted to his present rank, while serving with the Marine Corps Security Force Co., Naval Air Station North Island, San Diego, Cal.

The 1990 graduate of Huron High School in New Boston joined the Marine Corps in December 1990.

Charity campaign will begin May 9

A request for a door-to-door campaign by the Muscular Dystrophy Association this May has been approved by the members of the Romulus City Council.

District MDA Director Karen Juroff asked for and received permission to conduct a door-to-door campaign in the city from May 9 to 19.

Helping hands

Two Romulus area food distribution centers, the Helping Hand Thrift Store and the Wayne Metro Soup Kitchen, shared in the distribution of Crop Walk funds pledged last year during the annual fall walk-a-thon.

Carolyn Landis, second from left, the Romulus Crop Walk chairman, revealed that both centers received $757.39 each for the needs of area residents.

City to update alcohol law

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus Police Department has been urged to develop a "cite and release" policy for minors found in possession of alcohol.

The request comes following a recent incident involving a small group of Dearborn High School students at a local hotel.

The incident (that occurred May 20 at the Hilton Suites Hotel) included the detention of 7 rowdy and apparently intoxicated Dearborn High students, who apparently aggravated other hotel guests with their loud party.

Hotel management called Romulus police to remove the offending students, according to reports of the incident.

The students, age 18 and under, reportedly came to Romulus for a party following one of their school dances.

Hilton Suites General Manager Art Thompson revealed that an adult sister of one of the students rented three hotel suites for that night. Hotel policy demands that such rentals be signed by a person older than 21.

After receiving complaints around midnight, hotel security tried to find the adult woman who had signed the rental agreement, according to Thompson.

When it was discovered that she was not on the premises, Thompson said, the group (larger than the number detained) was asked to leave. When they refused to respond in a timely manner, Romulus police were called.

Some of the youths reportedly left the hotel voluntarily, while others stayed and were abusive to police, according to reports of the incident.

Police Chief Fred Dansby revealed that some of the offenders 17 and older were actually arrested and charged with underage possession of alcohol.

"We later dropped the charges and returned the bond money for the adults, upon the advice of counsel," Chief Dansby said.

The juveniles were released to their parents and Dansby informed Dearborn Police Chief Ron Deziel of the incident.

Since the complaints were filed under a Romulus City Ordinance, Dansby said, the city legal staff will study the changes needed to be made in the ordinance in order to be in compliance with Michigan State Statute MCL 436.33(b), misdemeanor.

Perot campaign inspires resident

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Before taking on the duties of a campaigner for H. Ross Perot, Van Buren Township resident Donna Collins' only involvement with politics was at the ballot box.

In an effort to place Perot's name on the November ballot, Collins has set up a stand in front of the Belleville Post Office to collect names on nominating petitions.

"I'm here every day but Thursday. That's when I deliver meals to the homebound," Collins said. "Next week I may set up my table somewhere else in the area, but you can count on my being somewhere in the area with my petitions."

Collins ran into a minor brush with postal officials last week when she placed her table and Perot signs on government property. However, when she moved a few feet back to the right-of-way, she was able to continue her signature gathering.

"I was never involved in pol-

"The only thing that I did in the past was to vote, and now look at me."

itics before. The only thing that I did in the past was to vote, and now look at me," said Collins, pointing to the stacks of informational hand-outs and petitions. "I contacted the Perot campaign headquarters at the Royce Hotel in Romulus for information and now I'm coordinating the county petition drive."

Collins said her interest in H. Ross Perot began when he successfully directed a rescue mission to bring two EDS employees, being detained as hostages, out of Iran in 1979.

"I'm really disillusioned with the other candidates. I don't like either (Jerry) Brown or (Bill) Clinton, and I think (George) Bush had better start packing his bags and get ready to move," Collins said. "It's time for a change. I think the voters are saying 'none of the above' when they go to the polls for the Presidential Primary. It's time to get back to government 'of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

The Perot supporter says her candidate is a man of integrity, honesty and "has the money to back himself." His unexpected entry into the political arena has stirred a lot of interest and has prompted Collins' telephone to "ring off the hook."

Collins' husband, a General Motors employee of 32 years, faces the loss of his job when the Willow Run plant closes next year.

"I blame Bush for the plant closing. Maybe he didn't personally ask to have the Arlington, Texas, plant chosen over the Willow Run plant, but one of his people did," Collins believes.

Collins reported that she has not been turned down for a signature from any of the people she has approached other than unregistered young people.

Council increases license fees in city

License fees in Romulus were increased by the city council members Monday night.

City Clerk Linda Choate prepared a large chart listing the current license fee, the number of hours various city departments took to investigate a potential licensee, the actual city labor costs in preparing a license and a proposed new fee.

The council approved all the new fees recommended by Choate's office, except one for garage sales which had been updated in recent years.

New bonding levels for various businesses were also approved.

As an example, Choate's chart indicated that the current fee for someone offering to rent three to 10 units of apartments is $5. The actual cost to the city to investigate such a site is $107.25. Thus a fee hike to $125 was sought and approved.

The fee for 11 to 15 apartment units was increased from $15 to $150 and from $25 to $200 for 15 or more units.

Other increases included:

- Bars from $5 to $100.
- Caterers from $20 to $100.
- Hotels from $100 to $200.
- Meat markets from $5 to $100.
- Parking lots from $10-$25 to $75-$100.
- Restaurants from $5 to $100.
- Townhouses from $5-$25 to $125-$150.

Bonding rates were also increased substantially, such as used car dealers from $3,000 to $10,000, used auto parts dealers from $1,000 to $5,000 and vehicle dismantling and wrecking yards from $5,000 to $10,000.

The issue of city fees was addressed during the recent budget shortfall hearings, when Choate revealed that many of the city fees had not been increased in more than 20 years.

could be five to 10 years for each count, Early said. Further charges and arrests are pending.

Arraigned before 34th District Court Judge Felix Rogalle on Friday were: Jerry Allen Metcalf, 17, of Romulus; James Daugherty, 18, of Romulus; and Teri Lynn Fox, 17, of Woodhaven.

Metcalf was charged with 12 counts of auto theft and conspiracy. He is being held in lieu of a $15,000 bond.

Daugherty was also charged with 12 counts of auto theft and conspiracy. His bond was set at $12,000.

Fox was held on a pair of related conspiracy charges. He was released on $10,000 personal bond.

A preliminary examination was set for April 22.

The two juveniles were remanded to the Wayne County Jail.

Two 1988 Chevrolet Cavaliers were recovered, along with three Chevrolet pick-ups.

body parts he found strewn about the airport that day, he said.

Sparr said his happiest memories' center around the annual Christmas parties at Fire Station 4, where he said Santa would arrive and pass out gifts to the children of the fire officials.

Sparr and his wife, Mary, have twin boys, George Jr. and Geoffrey, 9, and a daughter, Amber, 11.

When not working, Sparr enjoys golf, bowling and camping.

City Councilman William Wadsworth called Sparr, "a unique example of what a fire-fighter should be."

Wadsworth, who attended the award presentation, said, "Romulus taxpayers should be proud of the calibre of the volunteers such as Sparr."

Fire

According to the rules of the grant, Schaefer said the local fire departments are to install the smoke alarms in the, "homes of indigent with young children or elderly persons, who do not already have a smoke detector."

While, "More than one smoke detector may be recommended for each home by the manufacturer or fire safety officials," Schaefer said, "only one (detector) will be provided through this program."

Greenslait said the local fire department will work with Romulus school officials to develop names of deserving families.

Allison revealed that while no Romulus resident has lost his or her life in recent years because of a missing smoke detector, at least 20 Michigan children died in fires last year where no operable smoke detector was in evidence.

Schaefer said his office is constantly looking for assistance from private industry and insurance companies throughout the state to provide smoke detectors and other community resources. Further information on the program statewide call 517-322-5448.

Woman injured

A 47-year-old Westland woman is in critical condition following an accident Sunday evening near the intersection of Palmer and Newburgh roads in Westland.

The woman whose name could not be released Monday morning, was driving her late model Ford north on Newburgh Road, when she attempted to turn into a driveway of a party store located south of Palmer Road on Newburgh Road, police said. Her car was then struck by a tow truck heading south on Newburgh Road.

"According to witnesses at the scene, the tow truck didn't have time to react," said Westland Police Officer Gary Sikorski. "She apparently made an abrupt turn into the parking lot. It appears that she turned in front of the tow truck."

Attorney general brings message to local Chamber of Commerce

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

Business individuals, attorneys and judges from western Wayne County gathered at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce last week to hear words of wisdom from Attorney General Frank Kelley.

First elected attorney general in 1962, Kelley has been elected to office eight times. He is the 50th attorney general to serve the state of Michigan.

A graduate of the University of Detroit, Kelley first practiced corporate law in Detroit. He then went to Alpena where he practiced general law and served as city attorney and county supervisor.

Kelley has developed an aggressive consumer protection program, fought polluters of Michigan air and water, worked for civil rights and civil liberties for all Michigan residents and led efforts to control crime and drug abuse.

Kelley created a Consumer Protection Division, an Environmental Division and a Medicaid Fraud Division.

He has won numerous awards during his tenure, the most recent in 1989 when the State Bar of Michigan adorned him with the title "Champion of Justice" for his outstanding contribution to the justice system, superior professional competence and dedication to his community, state and nation.

Kelley began his presentation to the chamber by quoting an esteemed United States supreme court justice's view on the role of business and industry in a democratic society.

"He said, 'The end for which we must strive is the attainment of rule by the people, that involves industrial democracy as well as political democracy,'" Kelley said. "In other words, having citizen involvement in business and industry is an integral and necessary part of a democracy, for it is only through business and commerce that we can hope to fulfill the most essential daily needs of our citizens."

Kelley said it is only through business and commerce that strength can be retained as a democratic nation.

"The former Soviet Union finally recognized their own mistake of leaving the private citizens out of their industry," Kelley said. "They are working hard to catch up and correct the vast problems, but they are not easily corrected."

Americans must learn from the mistake of the Soviet Union and make sure business and commerce flourishes both within the U.S. borders and around the world, according to Kelley.

"We must see to it that our views of commerce is not too simplistic," Kelley said. "Our world is not as simple as it once was. In my judgement, we cannot hearken to the same old views we had a century ago of labor battling industry and industry battling labor and both blaming the government."

Which country is the main competitor with America?

"Japan," Kelley said. "Japan is the personification of cooperation in the area of commerce between the public, between the government, between the financial institutions and between the industrials themselves."

"They cooperate, and they plan for the long view. We have MBA's (Masters of Business Administration) in this country who get a job as president of a company and their view is five years. Whereas Japan has a 25-year plan."

Cooperation is definitely needed between the commerce, public, government, financial institutions and the industrials in order for the country to prosper, according to Kelley.

"When I was growing up in Detroit, making money and starting business ventures, it was far less complicated than it is now," Kelley said. "All you needed was an idea, some ambition and some good salesmanship, and you could get yourself started."

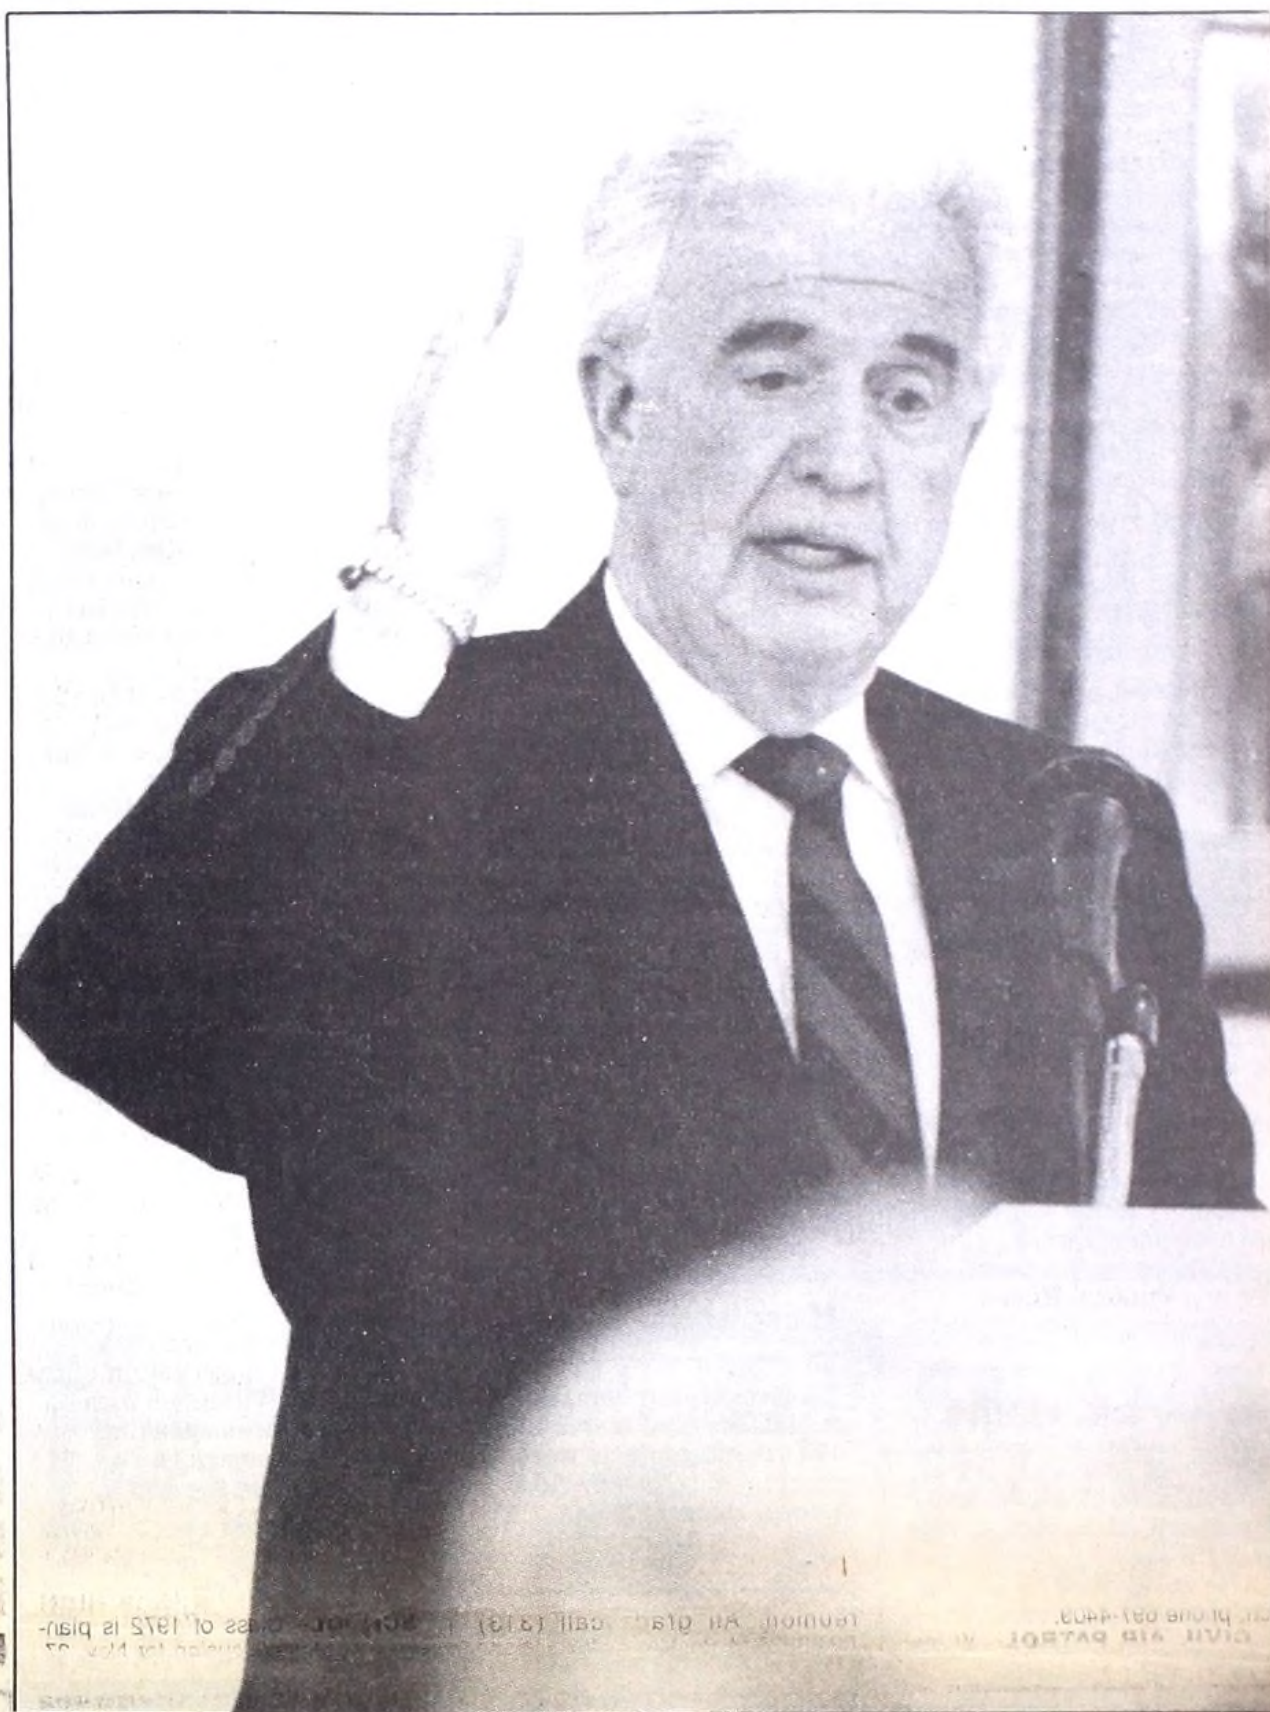

Today, however, the average youth cannot make enough money for college, according to Kelley.

"Today the world has become too complex for any simple approaches," Kelley said. "I'm a little disturbed by the entrance of Ross Perot in the presidential campaign. He has this simplistic version of life. When asked 'What are you going to do when you become president?' he answered, 'Well, we'll just have committee meetings, and pass resolutions.'"

"He doesn't even understand the basic ideas of our government which is a system of checks and balances based on three branches of government making sure no one branch can have control of anything so there has to be a compromise."

Today a young person starting off to create a business enterprise faces many challenges and pitfalls, according to Kelley.

"From licensing to registration requirements, to consumer protection and tax laws, even door-to-door sales are regulated by state law," Kelley said. "Many local ordinances regulate what salespeople can and cannot do. The local auto mechanic is now subject to state licensing and regulation."

Operating a business is a very complicated process, and no longer are businesses being handed down to family members as they once were.

"In the past many young people were able to get their start by working in the family business and then taking over the family business," Kelley said. "For the most part it is no longer an option because small family businesses are really not surviving in any great numbers in this country today."

The birth of franchising has done much to change the method of merchandizing in America, Kelley said.

"What has been Hud's old hamburger stand on State Street is now a Burger King franchise," Kelley said. "But don't get me wrong. I'm not objecting to the change or to the regulation. Most has been a response to public needs and public wrongs."

Over the years, Kelley said he has seen the need for laws in order to make sure businesses are fair and honest with the consumer.

"In my years as attorney general I have seen the need for these laws with all kinds of fraud going on," Kelley said. "There used to be a lot more fraud in this state, but now we have a reputation of being in the forefront of consumer protection in this state."

"Many of the frauds that are prevalent in other states don't even come into Michigan."

When a state conscientiously enforces consumer protection laws and environmental laws, it creates an atmosphere conducive to good legitimate business practices, Kelley said.

"I admire those who work hard to succeed in their businesses, vocations and professions," Kelley said. "It's not easy. I'm sure it was tough to go through medical school, I know it was tough going through law school. Anything worthwhile in life is difficult."

"I'm afraid we have developed a mentality in this country that you're entitled by mere accident of birth to some standard of living and standard of life beyond your abilities, training and discipline."

Kelley pointed out in Japan, students interested in becoming a lawyer only have one chance to pass the bar examination. If they fail, they will never become a lawyer.

"This is the type of discipline we are competing with," Kelley said. "I was raised in a household by a father who used to preach that this is the only country in the world where a person can rise from birth through their own ambition and discipline to create a business and prosper. I respected him then and respect him even more now."

As attorney general, Kelley said he has used his skills for the betterment of the state.

"I'd like to think I've helped," Kelley said. "I've been elected eight times, and the reason I think that is because no one knows what an attorney general does."

The office of an attorney general originated several years ago in Europe. The office of attorney general came to America with the European colonies that established in this country.

"The attorney general of Michigan is located in the executive branch of government," Kelley said. "This person is elected on the same day as the governor of Michigan and is the attorney for all three branches of government."

"The attorney general is the only attorney in this state who is above conflict of interest if he represents more than one client."

The attorney general is the only one allowed to represent the State of Michigan.

"In other words, there are no lawyers in the government which represent the State of Michigan except the attorney general which is why we have 280 assistants," Kelley said. "We represent the governor, all of the heads of the state departments, the legislature, as well as all of the commissions of government."

The attorney general defends all state employees, representatives and agencies if they are sued for any act which was in their duty, according to Kelley.

All criminal appeals are handled in the name of the attorney general. "It's my job after people are put in prison to see that they are kept there," Kelley said. "Since I've been an attorney general in 31 years, nobody ever convicted of first degree murder in Michigan has ever gotten out of prison nor have they ever gotten out and committed another murder."

More Detroit suburban homeowners

The SPRING Newspapers' circulation more than doubles the daily suburban circulation of either The Detroit News or Free Press.

In fact, SPRING's suburban circulation is greater than the two metro dailies' combined.

And that's not all.

According to the 1991 Belden study, SPRING reaches more of the affluent suburban shoppers who have more—and spend more.

► 182,800 more suburban homeowners than the daily News (88,500 more than the Free Press).

► 171,000 more suburban Do-It-Yourselfers than The News (89,400 more than the Free Press).

► 100,600 (and 52,800) more suburban linen and bedding buyers.

► 64,400 (and 31,000) more suburban buyers of major appliances.

Simply put, one order in SPRING delivers more.

Shouldn't you be advertising in SPRING more?

To get all the facts, call your SPRING representative.

2 property tax reform proposals will be on ballot

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

At least one, and possibly two, property tax reform proposals, will be on the ballot in November for voter consideration.

The Michigan Board of Canvassers ruled earlier this week that enough signatures have been gathered to place a property tax proposal - strongly supported by the governor - on the ballot.

The proposal, if approved, would cut property taxes by 30 percent and would tie future assessment increases to the rate of inflation.

The board announced that backers of the proposal to Cut and Cap taxes, as the proposal is known, have collected the state-required 339,000 signatures to place the issue on the November ballot.

Because the proposal would alter the state tax structure, a constitutional amendment is required.

Gov. John Engler is among the champions of the proposal. He successfully ran for office on a platform that included restructuring the state property tax formula.

A second, and competing proposal, authored by the House Democrats, is also in the hands of the Board of Canvassers. The board has yet to decide whether the House property tax cut proposal will be placed on the November ballot or returned to the Legislature for action.

School districts are wary of any move to cut property taxes because it provides the bulk of most of their financing. However, the Cut and Cap proposal would require the legislature to reimburse school districts - but not local governments - for any revenue losses due to the exemption.

Here are the main points of the Cut and Cap proposal:

- Proposes a constitutional amendment to limit assessment increases, of all classes of property, to 3 percent or the rate of inflation whichever is less (not counting the State equalized valuation additions for new construction, or SEV losses);

- It would provide an exemption from school operating taxes, for all classes of property, of 30 percent, phased-in over five years (10 percent in 1993; 15 percent in 1994; 20 percent in 1995; 25 percent in 1996 and 30 percent in 1997 and thereafter;
- The Legislature would be required to reimburse school districts, but not local governments, for revenue losses due to the exemption;
- To fund the plan, the governor plans to earmark certain anticipated state revenue growth.

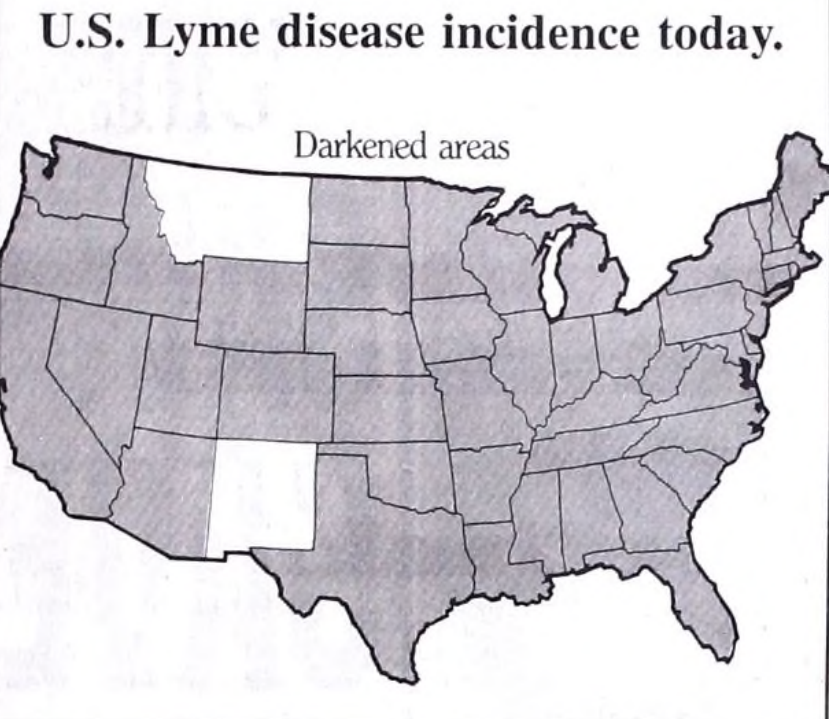

Lyme disease vaccine developed for pets

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Although area pet owners are being urged to vaccinate their dogs against Lyme disease before the warm weather arrives, many have questioned the need for protection in western Wayne County.

Ticks, which are the known carriers of the disease, become active when the weather warms. When people and pets visit the grassy and wooded areas where the pests dwell, the ticks can pass the disease along to them.

The disease, which can cause pain, joint swelling, arthritis and lameness in dogs, can also be passed along to the people.

Lyme disease was not listed as a concern by pet owners.

Guidelines to help prevent the threat of Lyme disease are as follows:

- Cut brush and mow grass in areas where pets play.
- Pet veterinarian-prescribed flea and tick collars on all pets.
- Routinely check pets after they have been outdoors.
- Use baths or dips to kill ticks on your pet.
- Treat yard with a spray recommended by a veterinarian.
- Vaccinate your dogs against Lyme disease.

Free copies of "Answers to Critical Questions About Lyme Disease and Your Dog" are available from area veterinarians.

Currently, human Lyme disease cases have been reported in 47 states.

The incidence of cases being reported has increased 18-fold since 1982. Recently released figures for 1991 revealed a 17 percent increase in Lyme cases from the previous year. Experts estimate that the incidence in dogs may be six to 10 times higher than humans.

The two primary transmitters of the disease in the northeast and midwest is the deer tick. The Western black-legged ticks carry the disease in the Pacific Coast areas.

"If your dog is strictly a house pet, than you may not need to have him vaccinated. But, if you have a hunting dog or if you go camping or vacationing in the north woods with your pet, you need to protect him," Schiff said.

"Preventive medicine pays. It pays to protect your children and the neighbors' children," the veterinarian said. "Why set things up so that your dog and yourself will be exposed to the disease when a vaccination will prevent it?"

Schiff said he is aware that some pet owners will consider the vaccination as "just another expense." However, the veterinarian believes the cost is not important when one considers that an infected animal could pass along the disease to members of one's family.

"The cost of the vaccination is very small compared to the cost of treating the disease," Schiff said.

Lyme disease ranks second to cancer as dog owners' main health concern for their pets, according to a animal health survey by the Morris Animal Foundation. In a 1985 survey,

Teacher of the year sought

Somewhere, in the area served by Associated Newspapers is a very special person.

He or she is tall or short, blonde or dark, has either dark brown or some other color of eyes and may love sports or disregards them. The one characteristic sure to be found in this elusive personality is the ability to inspire and educate young people.

Beginning this month, we are accepting nominations for Teacher of the Year from students or parents in our area.

The rules are very simple. The individuals nominated must live and teach in the circulation area of The Belleville Enterprise, The Canton Eagle, The Inkster-Ledger Star, The Canton Eagle, The Wayne Eagle or The Westland Eagle.

The candidates can be elementary or secondary teachers and there is no other qualification other than the desire of a present or former student to bestow this honor based on the impact the nominated individual had on the lives of students.

To nominate a teacher, simply complete the entry blank which accompanies this notice and attach a letter telling us why your nominee should be accorded the honor of Teacher of the Year.

Deadline for entries will be May 28, 1992 and the winner will be announced in mid-June.

School deputy offered new position

Wayne-Westland Deputy Superintendent of Schools Dr. Thomas Svitekovich could soon become the superintendent of schools in the Carman-Ainsworth Community School District.

"My initial discussions with the search consultant and members of their board of education indicate that the contract they will be offering will be acceptable to me," Svitekovich said in the letter addressed to Wayne-Westland school board members and district administrators.

"Please be assured that I am writing this communication with a great deal of mixed emotion," he said in the letter. "I have put my heart and soul into this district for the past 28 years. I have given it my best and, in return, the Wayne-Westland community has been a great place to live and raise my family. The Wayne-Westland schools provided an excellent education for my children and the thousands of students we have touched over the years."

Svitekovich is waiting to receive copies of the contract. "They have offered me the contract and we have a tentative agreement," Svitekovich said Thursday afternoon. "This all happened so fast."

The Carman-Ainsworth Community School District is located west of Flint and services students living in two townships—Mundy Township and Flint Township. The district has approximately 5,200 students compared to the 16,000 students in Wayne-Westland which is the second largest school district in Wayne County.

Since November he has assumed responsibility for the daily operation and activities of the Wayne-Westland school district. In November former Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dennis O'Neill announced his retirement and went on a medical leave.

Carman-Ainsworth school district officials have tentatively agreed on the contract Svitekovich has been offered which he described as comparable to his current contract with Wayne-Westland where he is paid a salary of $95,353 each year.

"There are differences in the fringe packages which include benefits that I don't have here such as a car," Svitekovich said. "Their total package is comparable to my current salary."

Svitekovich told Wayne-Westland school board mem-

Morton announces his retirement

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

He agreed to give the City of Wayne a helping hand when former Wayne Public Safety Director Fred Stafford retired in November of 1990, but on April 15 Art Morton will end a 25-year career with the Wayne Police Department.

"It's not really a retirement because I was hired on a temporary basis," Morton said. "I've enjoyed my year as public safety director."

Recently, Wayne Deputy Police Director John Colligan expressed his gratitude for Morton's assistance before the Wayne council.

"I would personally like to thank Art Morton for all his support and help," Colligan said. "He is a superb director and individual."

Morton doesn't have any specific plans after he leaves the Wayne Police Department except to relax with his wife Judy and their three children.

Art Morton

Morton said. "The challenge is going to be to educate the public on the new law."

The new drunk driving law allows police to immediately confiscate the driver's license of a person who fails or refuses the breathalyzer test and requires swift action from the legal system for persons charged with driving while intoxicated.

bers last month that he was a candidate for the Carman-Ainsworth position for which there were more than 60 candidates.

"They've been aware that I applied and that I was a finalist," Svitekovich said.

He also sent a letter to other administrators and board members Wednesday morning.

Svitekovich expects to sign a contract with the Carman-Ainsworth school district by the end of this month.

Wayne-Westland school board members are expected to begin interviewing candidates for school superintendent next week. Svitekovich is also one of 59 candidates who have applied for that position. Officials from the search firm Hazard, Young, Bickert and Associates are expected to begin interviewing candidates tomorrow at an undisclosed hotel near Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

If Svitekovich is selected as a finalist, he could still be offered the Wayne-Westland position before he signs with Carman-Ainsworth. Once he has signed the contract with Carman-Ainsworth, Svitekovich said he would withdraw from being a superintendent candidate in Wayne-Westland.

"The timelines are very tight in both circumstances," Svitekovich said.

Do not shoot the messenger

They are angry, hurt, disappointed, disgruntled and puzzled. They feel that they've been misled, betrayed and ill-used and they don't like it very much.

Frankly, we don't like it either and agree with them about the ill treatment they have received. We just disagree about the identity of their psychological assailant.

We are referring, of course, to the many senior citizens who were recently involved in the fund raising efforts to purchase a new city bus for use at the Westland Friendship Center.

These active citizens worked long and diligently to earn more than $63,000 to match the city pledge of $75,000 to purchase the bus. They sponsored dances, card games, raffles, bake sales and solicited donations from businesses and residents and many of them contributed from some very small personal incomes.

Only to be told at the last possible moment that the bus would not be equipped as they had been expected. The bus would not have the number of seats they had expected and the bus would require facilities for the handicapped.

Had these hardworking and dedicated residents been informed of these requirements at the instigation of the fund drive, the subsequent controversy and publicity might have been avoided.

The senior citizens were not told of the impending federal Americans With Disabilities law which would require handicapped facilities on the bus which is to be city-owned until the issue of ordering the bus came before members of the Westland City Council. Only then were the elected council members placed in the unenviable position of explaining these requirements to the seniors who had been working so long and so hard for their goal.

Members of the council in Westland take their responsibility to protect all the citizens seriously, even when doing so requires taking some very unpopular action. In this situation, they were forced to attempt to explain the law and then operate within it, despite the protests and laymen's interpretations of federal legislation offered by the emotional and distressed senior citizens.

The council members were threatened, insulted and told the entire senior community would never vote for them again, simply because they had the courage and integrity to operate within the detailed responsibilities of their elected positions.

How incredibly perverse. These people were criticized for protecting the city from damages, lawsuits and committing a federal offense. And for that action, the senior citizens chastised and derided them.

Had these seniors been kept properly informed and counseled during the fundraising efforts about this upcoming law and these requirements, this entire debacle could have been avoided.

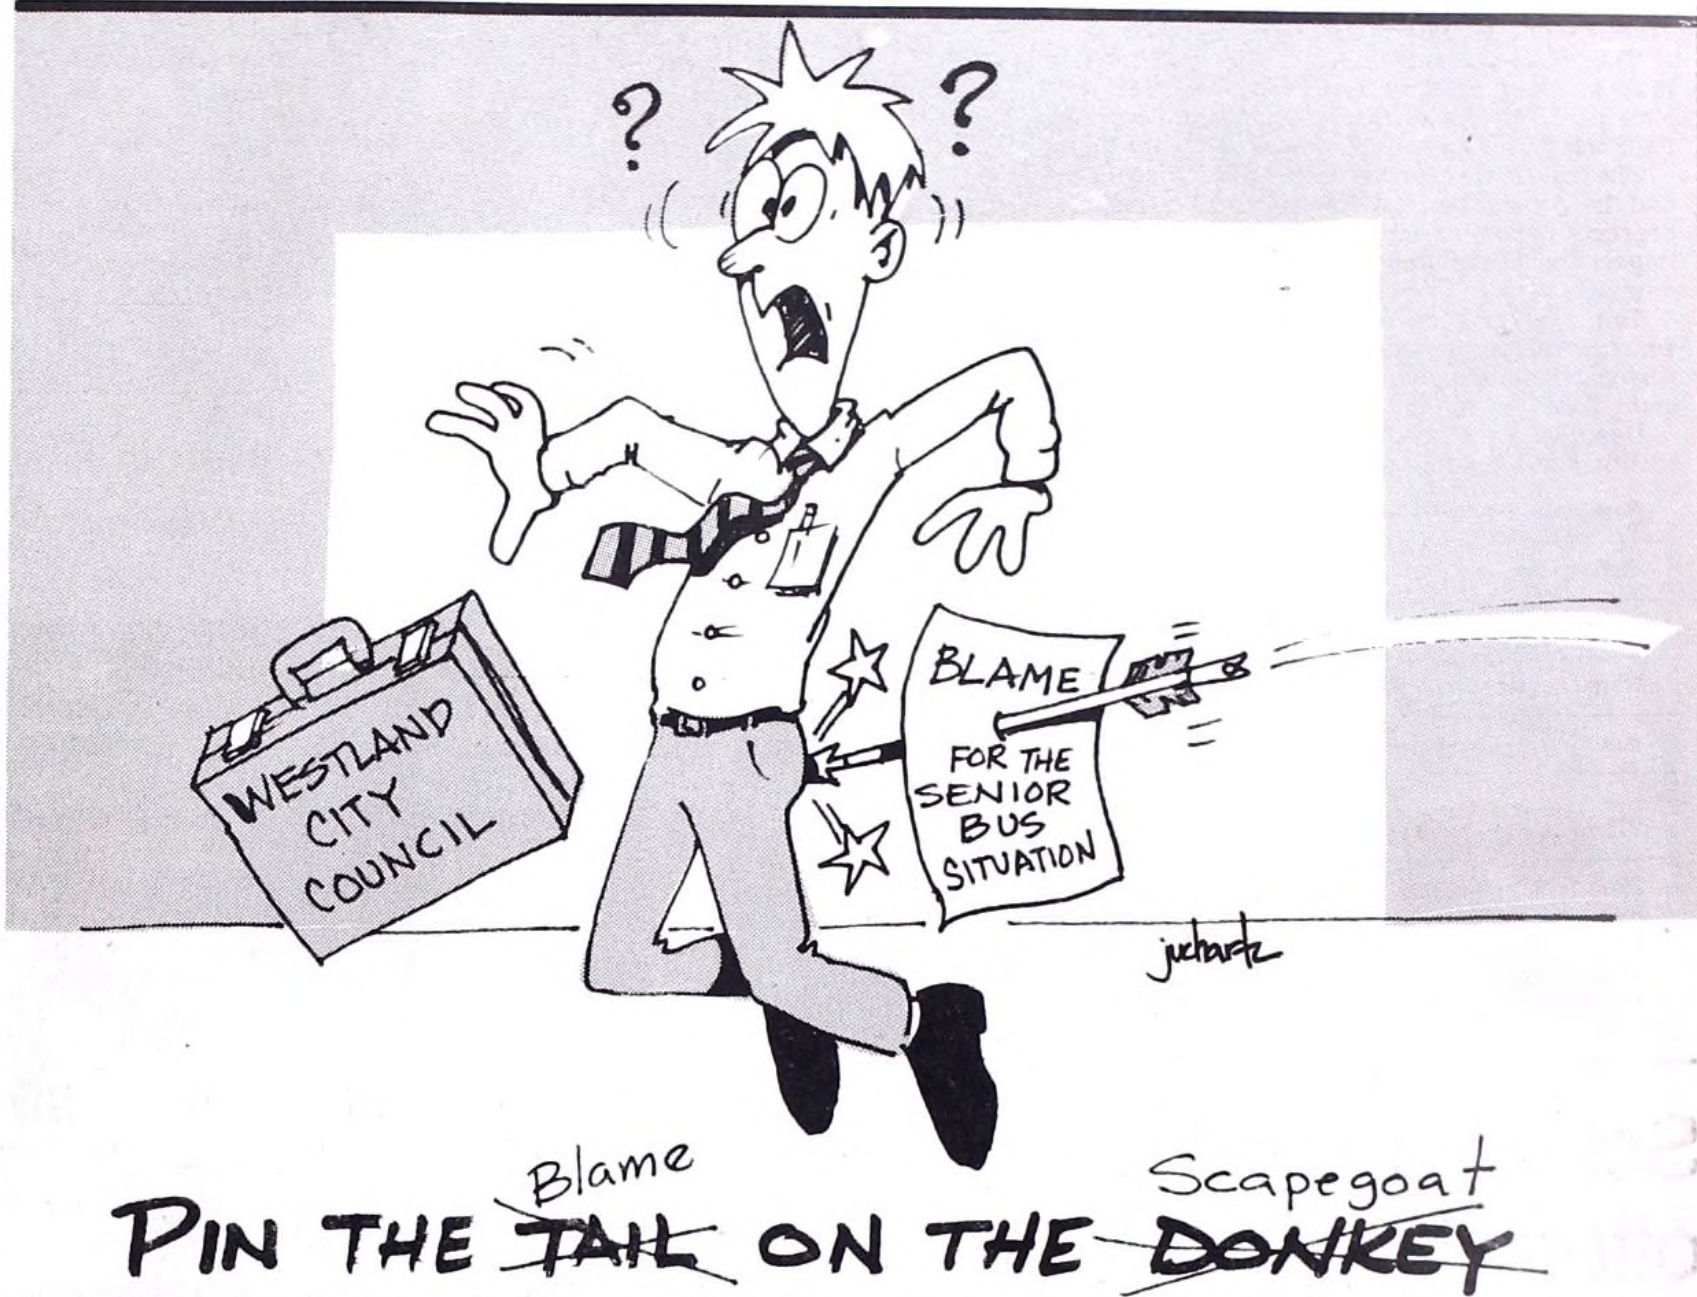

Unfortunately, they were not. They were allowed to believe that the bus would be as described to them when any individual aware of the federal laws and programs knew full well of these impending restrictions. Why were they not told? This law was no secret and information was available and public. They should have been told early in the game that this legislation would affect their efforts and the specifications for the bus.

Their anger and dismay is well justified. The seniors who worked so many hours and so diligently are to be admired and their efforts applauded.

Their anger at the members of the Westland City Council, however, is misdirected and inappropriate. Their feelings of distress and fury are certainly justified.

But that anger is misdirected and channeled in the wrong arena.

They have our sympathy and our understanding, but they have clearly chosen the wrong target on which to vent their anger.

Cable rate increase blasted

To the Editor:
To all cablevision subscribers, especially seniors who are on a fixed income. Our cablevision rates keep increasing and increasing. It is bad enough for the senior citizens, but with so many people out of work and everyday more and more are losing their jobs, why are the cable companies continuously raising their rates????

They advertise on television that it is just a small increase, but small and small adds up to a lot when your income does not increase. Everyone wants only a little more. Where do they expect the people to get it from?

A couple of years ago I contacted the cable company and asked if there was a discount for senior citizens. I was told that they were looking into that possibility. I called a couple of weeks ago and I got the same response again. I guess that answers my question well enough!

Isn't there anything that our Mayor or City Council can do to put a stop to these increases?

Sincerely,
Ted Donal
Westland

Director's performance is praised

To the editor:
Your editorial and cartoon of March 19, 1992 criticizing the job performance of the city Senior Resource Director was so full of anger, hate and venom that I felt compelled to respond to it.

You took the opportunity to condemn an individual who for the past 23 years has dedicated her life to serving Westland's (sic) senior citizens. For the past 15 years she has been an employee of the city department on aging/senior resources department and has taken a small, club-oriented social program and expanded it into a program that is widely recognized by most people (including those who criticize her) as the "best in the state". Westland seniors are envied by those in surrounding communities who wish they had the same comprehensive services available to them. These opportunities are only available because of Sylvia's unselfishness and her willingness to go "above and beyond the call of duty" to help our senior citizens. She is a tireless worker and this city and its taxpayers should thank their lucky stars that they have such a caring person in charge of senior citizen activities. The taxpayers get their money's worth and more.

The issue I would like to raise is that there is one major point being forgotten by you, Chuck Pickering, Tom Brown, Sharon Scott, Ken Mehl, the people who created this dispute, the public and the proponents of the lift. That point is that without Sylvia's courage, dedication, inspiration and leadership in raising $75,000 over a two-year recessionary period toward the purchase of this bus—there would be no cartoon, no editorial, no dispute/debate, no bus, no lift-period. Our council would have never, ever appropriated adequate funding for a bus for our seniors or handicapped—with or without a lift—without those contributions. For her initiative and effort, Kozorosky-Wiacek should be commended, recognized and thanked by this community, not crucified.

And not to be ignored is the fact that recently all senior citizens in wheelchairs from Westland had an excellent opportunity to speak for themselves at City Hall. Where were these people interested in a lift for proposed travel bus on the evenings of March 2, 9, and 16?

Conservatory proposal gets support

Dear Editor:

We are both impressed and enthusiastic about the concept of a Victorian-style conservatory for Wayne. This would add a much-needed bright spot to western Wayne.

Columbus, Ohio has an old-fashioned conservatory of this type within one of its central city parks. The conservatory in Franklin Park is also a center where garden clubs meet and where horticultural and gardening courses are offered.

We haven't viewed the architectural drawings yet, but hope that it will include room for educational activities as well. ...Sounds terrific!

Sincerely,
B.B. Bagchu

Apology from former clerk is suggested

To the editor:

I read Linda Chuhran's letter in the March 12 newspaper with interest (Sewer Project Reports Make Public Sick). She raises some issues which may be important in the local elections. For that reason, I believe some of her comments deserve additional comment.

First, I think it is important to remember that Ms. Chuhran was involved in the approval and initial stages of the sewer project. It is possible that some of the "astronomical spending" is due to actions or underestimating which may have occurred during the project's initial stages.

Second, Tom Yack did run on the basis of becoming a part-time supervisor. However, the voters (not Tom Yack) rejected a ballot proposal to reduce the scope of the supervisor's job to part time and hire (not elect) a full-time professional township manager. The Canton community is large and complex enough that full-time administration is necessary. With either a full-time elected supervisor of a full-time hired manager, the salary and staff costs would be incurred.

The tone of Ms. Chuhran's letter suggests that Tom Yack did something wrong by accepting and acting in accordance with the decision of the voters of Canton. This suggestion is totally inappropriate and I suggest that Ms. Chuhran owes Tom Yack and the voters of Canton an apology.

Third, to me it is refreshing to see our tax dollars spent for the salaries of people working for the benefit of the township (as opposed to being spent for legal fees in intra-township board lawsuits). The past three years have shown a significant improvement over the previous four in this respect.

Fourth, it is my understanding that there is no plan to appoint a "buddy" to the treasurer's position. Instead, the board may ask the governor not to act to fill any vacancy until after the election.

Fifth, Ms. Chuhran's letter raises the issue of the capability of those we elect to public office. I applaud her for this. Canton has become a populous and complex community. We need and deserve qualified, competent, and capable elected officials. We need and deserve effort commensurate with the salaries paid. We need and deserve elected officials who are true public servants and not simply a drain on public resources. We need to consider carefully just who it is we are electing.

Senior group position defended

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to your "Opinion" page of March 19, 1992.

As I read the article and looked at the cartoon, my mind would not accept what my eyes were absorbing. How could anyone write such negative remarks about a woman that has done so much good during most of her life? Twenty three years to be specific, she has worked so hard to make life a little nicer for the forgotten generation, the senior citizens. For years the senior center seniors have had their own bus, a school bus not fit for any senior to ride in. No one else was interested in riding our bus. Our director, Sylvia, (Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek) told us for years some day we would have a comfortable bus with more seats, but we wondered. Well, about a year and a half ago we started our drive. We really worked hard, also giving of our own meager incomes. Now that we have reached our goal of half the cost, now all of a sudden, it is no longer our project, but everyone's, even though in all but a very few cases, they contributed no time and no money. At no time was the fact discussed that it was not be mainly our bus.

We are also appalled at being pictured as insensitive to the handicapped. Nothing could be further from the truth, but since we have no wheelchair members in our travel group, the subject never was discussed.

I hope when you are a senior citizen, you will be treated with more compassion than we seem to be.

Contrary to the person who was ashamed to sign his name to the article, I will sign mine.

All-Area

Dan Bonnett, a 125-pounder, is one of the finest wrestlers, and only one of a handful of hard-nosed grapplers, to ever win a Class A state title at Plymouth-Salem. "Dan's one of those rare talents that coaches dream about," noted Salem coach Ron Krueger, who has been the Rocks' coach for over two decades. Bonnett posted a phenomenal 48-1 overall record.

Tom Pace, an outstanding senior talent at Westland John Glenn, helped make the Rockets tough in the light weights. He came on strong at the end of the year, picking up a silver medal at the Western Lakes Conference championships before qualifying for the state finals. At state, Pace surfaced in seventh-place that earned him all-state consideration. You could always rely on Pace to come up with a 110-percent performance, according to Glenn coach Dave Hill.

Mike Mancini, the other sure John Glenn point-getter in the lightweights, was runnerup in the conference in the 112-pound class. A hard-worker who compiled an impressive 19-4-0 won-lost-tied record during his senior year, Mancini has been a prominent figure on the Rockets' mats for the past two years. He will be sorely missed by Glenn coach Dave Hill next year.

Scott Martin has three years of varsity experience behind him. He brought the curtain down on a stellar career with a 41-10 record and a gold medal in the Western Lakes Conference. A runnerup at the regional finals after finishing with the bronze in the district, Martin placed fifth at state to earn an all-state berth. He will be heading for Taylor University this fall.

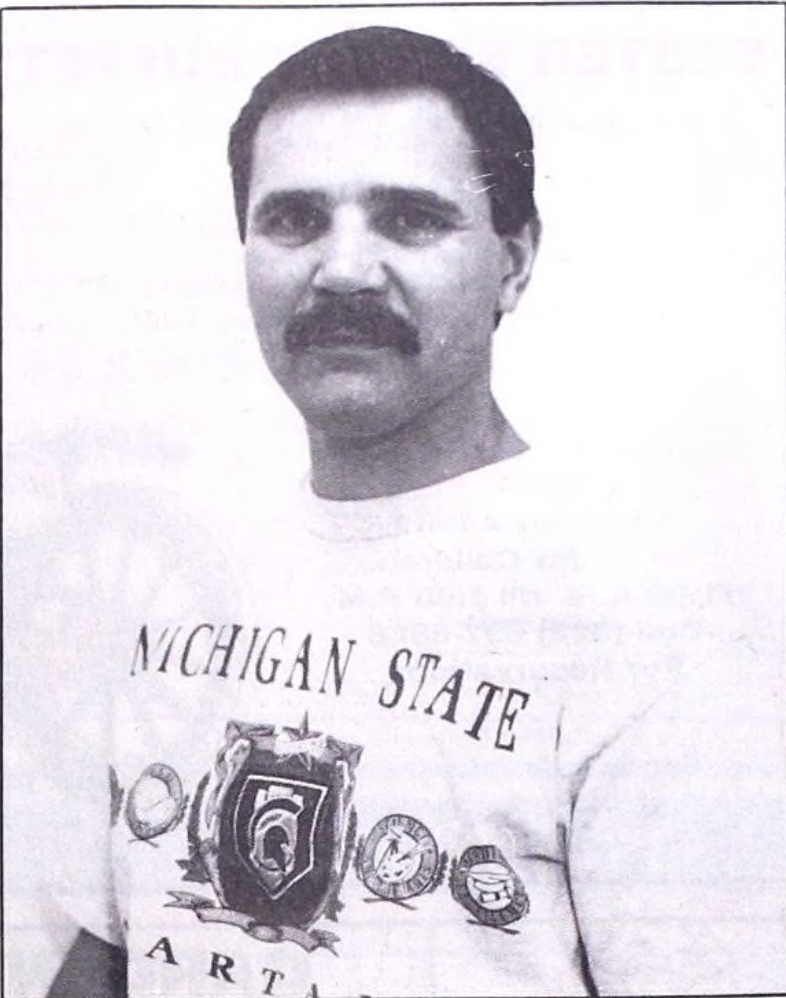

Dale Gehringer, a 119-pound senior who posted a sterling 41-7 overall record as a member of coach Norm Butler's team, is a four-year veteran grappler. "We have had many outstanding wrestlers here at Romulus," noted Butler, "and Gehringer ranks among the best. It has been a pleasure coaching him for the past four years. He will be missed." Gehringer is planning to attend college this fall and may enter Ferris State University.

Nick Spano will be returning to Coach Ray Givens' lineup at Plymouth-Canton next year. As a junior, Spano had an enviable season, putting together a 36-7 record which included a gold medal for his performance in the conference. He was second at districts and went on to qualify for state by placing third in the regional. Spano also earned a medal at the state championships thanks to a sixth-place finish.

Rob Graham is not only an outstanding athlete, he also boasts a 4.1 grade point average. The 160-pound junior finished with a 29-11 won-lost record, and walked off the mats at the Brother Rice and Romulus Royal invitational with gold medals. With Graham back in the lineup next year, and with a score of good-looking underclassmen also returning, the Eagles will have an excellent nucleus for the 1992-93 season.

Top coach makes '92 his last season

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Gerald Malecek has spent 20 years of his life coaching young men to wrestle with opponents and with life. And the Belleville High School wrestling coach said he has loved every minute of it. "But, as it is with most things," Malecek said, "there's time to step aside. A time to enjoy things that you usually miss because of constraints. That time has come."

Phil Haynes claimed a silver at the Western Lakes Conference championships in the 189-pound class. The Plymouth-Salem junior has two years of varsity experience behind him, and should improve on a 26-9 overall record next season. A fourth-place finisher in the districts, Haynes qualified for the regional this year but failed to make it to the state, something he should rectify next year.

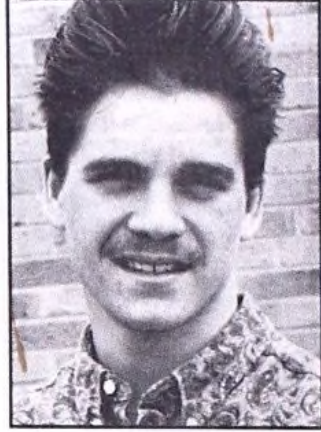

Fred Davis, a senior who helped revive wrestling at Inkster High this year after a 25-year hiatus, had an incredible season considering it was his first year of varsity competition. The Viking heavyweight finished eighth at state in Class B competition after piling up an outstanding 42-8 overall record. He also the first Inkster Suburban Athletic Conference champ. Davis won the regional title after he finished runnerup at the district.

Wrestling Team

Michael Reeves, only one of two members of the 1991-92 All-Area team who captured a state title this year, accomplished the rare feat as a junior. The 152-pound John Glenn junior is an unselfish competitor whose work ethics have helped him to become one of the best wrestlers in the Westland-based high school history. Boasting an impeccable dual meet record, Reeves coasted through the conference and was one of the untouchables in post-season competition.

Mike Scully finished third at the state finals and is the only grappler this year to defeat the reigning 125-pound state champ this year. And how can you keep a wrestler who finished third at state off of the All-Area? You can't. Especially since he also boasts a fantastic 51-6 overall record, after breezing through the district and regional competitions. "He is one of the finest athletes that I have ever had the pleasure of coaching."

Steven Davis is probably the only wrestler in the 30-year history of the All-Area selections to make the team four consecutive years. The 135-pound Belleville grappler has appeared on these pages and in the All-Area lineup as a freshman, after qualifying for state in his first year. As a sophomore he finished fourth at state, then second in his junior year and one-notch lower as a senior.

Jeff Shumate, a Plymouth-Salem senior, has a string of invitational victories to his credit, including the Romulus and Salem "A" tourney titles. Shumate plans to continue his education and wrestling career at Eastern Michigan University. With an impressive 35-6 overall record and a silver medal in the tough Western Lakes Conference, he should have little difficulty making the grade at EMU.

Billy Yuhas, the most improved of the Belleville wrestlers, is a versatile athlete who also has starred in football and baseball. He completed his senior campaign on the mats with a 30-12 overall record and, according to Belleville coach Gerald Malecek was one of "our most consistent performers." Yuhas was a key player in the Tigers drive for their fourth consecutive Class A district championship.

George Young also is a rare wrestling talent. He posted a 42-4 record as a senior at Plymouth-Canton in the 171-pound class. Young also won a gold medal in the Western Lakes Conference, finished runner-up at the districts before coming back for a gold at regionals. The outstanding grappler culminated four years of varsity competition with a third-place medal at the state finals. Coach Ray Givens will have a tough time replacing Young next year.

Jeremy Amrhein, a first-year varsity wrestler, had a fantastic sophomore season at Belleville. He managed to win 22 of his 30 dual matches, walking off with the tough Ypsilanti Invitation first-place medal. "With two more years of competition ahead of him," said Belleville coach Gerald Malecek, "Jeremy has the potential of not only developing into one of the finest wrestlers in the area but also in the state."

Coach

Malecek said he wants to spend more time with the family with his wife and their kids.

And when you have heard a coach talking like that, the obvious surfaces: Malecek announced last week that he won't be back as the Tiger coach next season.

"There are so many thing I want to do," Malecek said.. "Now, I hope I will have the time to do them."

During his tenure as coach, Belleville emerged as a state wrestling power. A year ago, the Tigers reached the state semifinals before losing. They have won four district, two regionals and 12 conference championships.

And Malecek's wrestlers have gone on to fame in colleges and universities around the nation.

Ironically, this year--his last--was the first time that his team didn't produce a Wolverine 'A' Conference individual weight-class champion. The Tigers, because of an unforeseeable incident, finished third in the conference after reaching the league meet with an impeccable 7-0 mark.

Belleville finished the 1991-92 campaign with a 17-2 record, including the Class A district crown. They lost to Brighton in the regional finals.

During his coaching career at Belleville, Malecek has amassed a 208-51-3 overall record. He also has had his share of state and regional awards.

But before he leaves the coaching scene--hopefully temporarily--The Associated Newspapers Sports Staff wishes to bestow yet another honor on this outstanding coach and educator. The ANP has singled out Gerald Malecek as Coach of the Year.

Lubemart offers print system

A quick oil change establishment in Wayne has found a way to stop potential thieves from stealing customer's cars.

Lubemart owner Dick Gross recently established the first free Vehicle Prints program at his quick oil change business, 32960 Michigan Ave.

Vehicle Prints is a theft deterrent system installed by Lubemart technicians which also qualifies vehicle owners for insurance premium discounts, according to Ned Grant, provider of the Vehicle Prints system.

"The Vehicle Prints system indelibly engraves the Vehicle Identification number (VIN) into the major glass panels of an automobile," Grant said. "I know the system sounds very simple, and it is. It works, however, because that small marking is like a fingerprint. It cannot be removed and because it is specific to one car, just like a fingerprint is to a person, it makes stolen marked parts virtually impossible to sell."

It is expensive and risky to remove marked glass, according to Grant.

"Professional car thieves know that, and they usually pass up any vehicle that has the VIN engraved into the glass. Crooks steal to make a profit, and they can't make money if they can't sell what they steal."

The continuing increase in vehicle thefts is alarming, according to Gross.

"According to recent figures from the National Insurance Crime Bureau, there were more than 1.6 million vehicles stolen last year," Gross said. "That's one every 19 seconds. We discovered this Vehicle Prints program and saw immediately that we could help reduce the likelihood of auto theft in our community."

Two weeks after a visit to Lubemart to have the VIN re-

Demonstrating application of the vehicle prints theft deterrent system, Lubemart owner Dick Gross applies the engraving gel to the stenciled area of a car window. Installation of the system can be accomplished during lube and oil change services. It takes two weeks after ordering for the vehicle specific stencils to arrive at Lubemart.

"Detroit has a bad reputation for thefts, but more than one-half of Michigan's thefts occurred outside the city."

- Dick Gross
Lubemart owner

corded so the engraving stencils can be ordered, Gross and his technicians will be ready to etch a customer's car. The system can be installed during a regular lube and oil change.

Michigan ranks 7th in total vehicle thefts for the period covered with 66,336 thefts, according to data from the National Insurance Crime Bureau. Of that total, 30,376 cars were stolen in Detroit.

"Detroit has a bad reputation for thefts, but more than one-half of Michigan's thefts occurred outside the city," Gross said. "It is because of the size of the problem outside Detroit, that we decided to provide Vehicle Prints as a free service for our customers."

Anyone interested in obtaining the Vehicle Prints service can contact Gross at 721-6244.
